GERMANS PREDICT FALL OF ANTWERP WILL BE SPEEDY

Outer Forts Have Been Reduced and Inner Ring Is Crumbling, Says Berlin

LITTLE ABOUT FRENCH AFFAIR

War Office Statement Only Says that the Situation in France Is About the Same

BERLIN, Via The Hague, Oct. 8.—The official announcement of the war office today states that the attack on Antwerp continues without interruption; that the outer forts have been reduced, the inner line is crumbling and that it is considered certain the fall of the city is only a question of a short time. The situation in France is said to show very little change. The attempts of the French to recover lost ground have all been frustrated and the German right wing is reported as making progress. Fighting continues in the eastern theater of war, it is announced, with the Russians falling in every attempt to break through the German lines.

In the list of casualties posted today appears the name of Major General Augustus Zellman, commander of the Second Bavarian field artillery, who was killed in action leading his troops more than a week ago. Rudolph Ulsten, the publisher, who is serving with a volunteer auto corps, and Dr. Adolf von Fleesken, have been created knights of the Iron Cross order for conspicuous service. Both are well known in the United States.

CUBS LEAD IN THIRD

WEST SIDE BASEBALL PARK. CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The Cubs' victory of Wednesday put new spirit in West Side fans. More than 10,000 turned out to see the second struggle between the Cubs and the White Sox in the city championship series. Cheney was picked to leave for the Cubs, with Bresnahan on the receiving side. Scott was the White Sox pitching choice with Schaak catching. The score:

Cubs 0 2 0
White Sox 0 1 0

DUBS MADE BISHOP

BARRINGTON, Ill., Oct. 8.—Dr. Rudolph Dubs of Harrisburg, Pa., was today elected to fill the third bishopric recently established by the United Evangelical church. The conference re-elected Bishops W. F. Swengel of Harrisburg and W. L. Foulke of Naperville, Ill., and re-elected H. B. Hartler of Harrisburg, editor of the Evangelical.

NO ST. LOUIS GAME

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 8.—A heavy rain that began falling shortly after noon today, plunged the city into darkness and cleared the streets of traffic for half an hour. As an aftermath, the managers announced the third sessions of the Browns-Cardinals city series would be postponed because of wet grounds.

WEATHER

Temperatures yesterday:
High, 69.
Low, 60.
Precipitation, .10.
Forecast for La Crosse and vicinity: Unsettled weather with probable showers; no decided change in temperature.
For Wisconsin: Unsettled weather with showers tonight and Friday.
For Minnesota: Unsettled weather tonight and Friday; probably showers.
For Iowa: Unsettled weather to night and Friday; probably showers.

Weather Conditions
The temperature and pressure changes have been generally small during the past 24 hours. Shallow depressions are central north of Montana and over the southwestern states and an area of relatively high pressure covers the Atlantic states. Local showers have occurred from the North Pacific states to the upper Lake region. The heaviest rainfall occurred in southeastern Nebraska and northwestern Missouri where slightly over an inch was recorded. The weather is cloudy this morning in nearly all sections, with rain at a few stations in the Mississippi valley and at Moorhead, Minn. The weather will continue unsettled in this section to night and Friday and showers are probable. There will be no decided change in temperature.

GERMAN ARMY SINGS ITS GORY WAY THRO' IRON HAIL OF DEATH

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
BERLIN, September 19, by Courier via Rotterdam to New York.—"As long as our soldiers sing, I have no fear for the Fatherland."

This was the statement of a German officer of high rank to me just after I had returned from the midst of the Kaiser's fighting men and found that they were distinctly singing soldiers. The German soldier sings and fights—and fights and sings. He sings before the battle and he sings after the battle. He even sings on the operating table while his wounds are being dressed. One of the most impressive things about the German army, aside from its excellent equipment and spirit of fighting for the Fatherland, is its singing. The men break into song at every opportunity. It seems they must give vent to the music of their souls.

The "singing soldiers" first impressed me during the mobilization in Berlin. Wherever they went, they went "a-singing"—the reserves with bundles in their hands on their way to the barracks for uniforms and equipment; the soldiers uniformed and equipped, marching to the railroad stations—always and everywhere singing.

In the improvised hospital of an ancient cathedral in Maastricht, on the Dutch-Belgian frontier, I found the severely wounded German soldiers constantly breaking into song. Travelling from Holland to Berlin, I boarded a train bearing wounded from Liege and Namur. They were singing. In the hospitals in Berlin news of victories is the signal for song that breaks forth from quivering lips of men with shattered limbs and faces distorted with pain.

Two cars of soldiers moving to the front were immediately behind our car of the train on which I left Berlin for a short trip recently. They were singing. There was seldom a pause. When soldiers in one car would rest, those in the next car would take up the refrain and at stations the two would join in a mighty chorus. Three long Red Cross trains of wounded coming from below Namur, Mons and Maubeuge, passed. From many cars came song—weak, quivering and trembling, it is true—but song.

And this music—the singing of men about to go into battle, or returning maimed, bleeding and suffering—has no "forlorn hope" note or melancholy sentiment. It fires the spirit. It is powerful and forceful. The rhythm sets the blood tingling.

There is music everywhere in the German army. While the big siege guns were smashing the Liege forts into heaps of ruins and shells were screaming over the city, General von Emmick had the regimental bands give concerts in the little park in the center of Liege.

"Music is helping us win our battles," a ranking officer told me today. "The love of our country that, through song, fires our spirit to deeds. What you have heard is the soul of the Fatherland."

ALLIES CLAIM TO BE REGAINING GROUND LOST EARLY IN WEEK

FIGHTING TODAY IS SUCCESSION OF CAVALRY BATTLES

Germans Are Being Forced Back in Their Attempt to Cut British Lines by Allies' Horsemen

ALLIES FRESH TROOPS SAVE Reinforcements of Indian Troops and Crack French Regiments Turn the Tide

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
PARIS, Oct. 8.—The allied armies are again on the offensive. It is officially admitted that they are slowly regaining every foot of the territory sacrificed to the Germans in the early days of this week. The Germans are being thrown back between the Somme and the Oise and have also been driven north of Arras.

All along the northern frontier of France the mounted troops of both armies are in battle. The official communiqué laconically says that the fighting "extends nearly to the North Sea." Behind that announcement is contained the declaration that the Germans are still doing their utmost to cut the British lines of communication, and to prevent this, the crack French cavalry, assisted by the Indian horsemen of King George, are fighting desperately.

There was a more confident ring in today's statement than at any time this week. It is declared here that the British and French reinforcements are on the firing line, and that it is due to their efforts that the Germans are being driven back.

Long Delay in Result
The Germans continue to endeavor to resume the offensive in the Woevre region, but so far they have failed. In every attempt they have been repulsed with heavy losses. It is now accepted that there will be a long delay before a decisive result can be secured in the north. The Germans continue to bring their reserve lines into action, indicating that their preparedness is phenomenal. These reserve divisions, for whom it was recently reported difficulty was being encountered in securing uniforms and equipment, are reported to be fully as well fitted out as the first line troops.

There is no news from Antwerp. The seat of government has been moved to Ostend, and little surprise

STATE O. E. S. ELECTS

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 8.—The grand chapter Wisconsin Order of the Eastern Star today elected the following officers: Grand worthy matron, Mrs. Flora M. Hurlless of Antigo; grand patron, J. F. Madison of Mazomanie; associate grand matron, Mrs. Minnie Cleveland, Ripon. Officers were installed this afternoon.

STALLINGS OFFERS TO PUNCH MACK

Rival Managers Have Run in Over Use of Stube Park for Practice

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—His face flushed with anger, after a telephone conversation with Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, Manager George Stallings of the Boston Braves, this afternoon, declared he had just threatened to punch Mack's face.

"Mack called me down for saying that his attitude in refusing the Braves permission to use Shibe Park before the series starts was unportsmanlike," said Stallings. "I reiterated it. Then he said some things that made me tell him to come down to my hotel and I would punch his face."

A group of interested fans constituted themselves into a voluntary signal corps to halt the approach of Mack. Mack said he told Stallings that he would have been glad to have let the Braves use the field this afternoon, as Stallings requested, but that previous arrangements had been made for the Athletics to work out at that time.

Philadelphia is now in the throes of a ticket speculation upheaval. The situation became so desperate that the director of Public Safety Porter ordered the police to clear the city of speculators. They were instructed to arrest any man caught trying to sell seats.

The prospects of rain for the first game has thrown many of the scalpers into a panic. Tickets which were being sold for $10 yesterday were offered at $5 today.

MAN SHOTS PRIEST

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 8.—Rev. Nicola Casu, an Italian Catholic priest, was lured to the home of Miss Natalie De Mosure, a French woman, who asked the priest to hear her confession, and shot three times, once in the left shoulder and once in each hand by a man whom the woman declared was John Penochchi, according to a confession the police declared they obtained from the woman. The shooting occurred early today.

Miss DeMosure said the shooting was the result of a feud that started in Italy.

PRESENT TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Presentation to the senate today of the completed war tax bill, made possible by final work of the democratic caucus, gave congressmen new hope for adjourning congress by October 15. Democratic leaders predicted adjournment within ten days. The senate finance committee, republicans and democrats, gave the emergency revenue measure final consideration early today.

ASK BIG DAMAGE FROM CORPORATION

Wisconsin Railway, Light & Power Company Defendant in $10,000 Suit Filed Today

WERE INJURED IN RUNAWAY Joseph Raith and Wife Maintain Negligence of Motorman Was Cause of Accident

Suit against the Wisconsin Railway Light and Power company was started this morning by attorneys for Joseph Raith and his wife. They ask for $10,000. Raith wants $8,000 and his wife $2,000.

Raith resides at 1217 Johnson street, and is an employee of the Gund Brewing company.

According to the complaint, Raith and his wife were driving over the causeway from North La Crosse to the South side on June 19. They claim the street was torn up, due to work being done on the street car tracks. A steam roller was working, they say, which scared their horse. A street car was approaching from the South. They signalled the motorman to slacken speed, as their horse was unruly. They declare the car struck the buggy and totally destroyed it.

Raith claims severe bodily injuries, with slight injuries to his wife. The horse ran away.

CHOKES BURGLAR TO DEATH

ALTON, Ill., Oct. 8.—A negro burglar was choked to death here early today by members of the family of Joseph Winkler, whose home he attempted to rob. Winkler, arising shortly after midnight, beheld his son, Fred, 16, grappling with the negro. Three of the family were slashed by a knife in the hands of the negro, but clutching the invader's throat, they held him until the arrival of the police. The negro was then found to be dead. The body was identified as that of William Sweeney, a paroled convict.

DOG SAVES MISTRESS

CENTRALIA, Ill., Oct. 8.—Mrs. Lottie Green of Centralia, awakened by an insistent scratching at her door early today discovered her dwelling to be in flames, and escaped, carrying her pet dog, who gave the warning.

CHOOSE HOOSIER CITY

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 8.—Indianapolis was selected as the 1915 meeting place for the Mississippi Valley conference on tuberculosis, by the convention here, over Des Moines, Birmingham, Louisville and Cincinnati.

ANTWERP FORTS ARE GONE AND CITY IS NEAR ITS DOWNFALL

RUSSIA EXPLAINS WITHDRAWAL WAS LURE FOR ENEMY

Say They Retired from Donajec River to Draw Austrians from Forts

ALLEGED RUSSIA WAS SUCCESSFUL

New Battle said to be in Progress on the Lines More Favorable to Russians

GERMANS HAVE STRONG POSTS

First Defense Line in East Prussia is Series of Strong Hidden Redoubts

PETROGRAD, Oct. 8.—An official explanation of the withdrawal of the Russians in Galicia from the line of the river Donajec was issued today. It was stated that the combined Austro-German army occupied a very strongly entrenched line extending from Kielese, in Russian Poland, south through Serguin and Tarnow to Neu Sandre. The Russian advance guard felt out this position and discovered that it was so strong that to take it meant frightful losses to the attacking army. In consequence the Russians withdrew in order to force the Austrians to accept battle in the open country.

Ruse Reported Successful
The ruse was successful, it is stated, and a new battle is now in progress along lines far more favorable to the Russians. The fighting is in the vicinity of the Vistula river just to the north of Scrugucin.

Meanwhile the bombardment of Przemyśl by the heavy Russian artillery continues. Great breaches are apparent while the Russian army report that many houses have been destroyed by fire, and that they saw numerous dead lying unburied in the street.

The Austrian garrison attempted a sortie on Tuesday night but the aerial scouts had reported that troops were being massed for that purpose and the Russians were in readiness. They annihilated the front columns by a fire from machine guns that had been masked on both sides of the southern gate through which the garrison tried to emerge.

German Posts Strong
The fighting continues with the utmost violence in East Prussian frontier, where the Germans occupy strong positions in the Tchernogajia region. They have uncovered here, it is stated, a series of hidden redoubts which are a part of their first defense line and in which are mounted heavy guns. Their entire battle line is of great strategic advantage because of the marshy nature of the land, and the many small lakes and streams that abound there.

In consequence the Russian advance is of necessity very slow.

G. N. R. R. ELECTS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 8.—Officers were elected and the annual reports were heard at the annual meeting of the directors of the Great Northern Railroad company this afternoon. Directors announced were Richard A. Jackson, St. Paul; William B. Dean, St. Paul; Samuel Thorne, New York; J. J. Hill, St. Paul; L. E. Kalzenbach, St. Paul; Ralph Budd, St. Paul; Edward Nichols, New York; P. L. Howe, St. Paul. L. W. Hill was elected to succeed himself as president. E. A. Bernhold and M. H. Niles of New York were elected transfer agents.

TOWN BEGINS TO FEEL SHELLS

Report from Hague Says Germans Have Turned Siege Guns on Buildings of the City

FORTS NOTHING BUT GAPING HOLES

Smothered by German Fire Their Garrisons Stayed to Last and Died at Their Posts

LONDON, Oct. 8.—That a British expeditionary force of unquestioned strength has been rushed into Antwerp from west of Ghent was reported here today. This expedition was declared to consist chiefly of artillery and a naval detachment, with heavy guns. The authorities refuse positively to admit even that British troops are in action in Belgium at all.

The Germans are in stronger force than anyone up to the present imagined. It is declared that there are not less than a quarter of a million men engaged about the city and it is invested from south, east and northeast, although the most determined efforts are being made on the south.

While the residents of Antwerp are panic stricken and have fled to the city wherever possible, the Belgian forces are still confident.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The capital of Belgium has been moved from Antwerp to Ostend, Minister Havenith of Belgium, formally announced today. He said the king and ministers had fled from Antwerp. The information came in a cablegram from the foreign office today.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Oct. 8.—With her outer ring of fortifications broken, and with every village within miles of the city in flames, Antwerp continued today to essay the fiercest resistance to the besieging Germans. The city itself, according to trustworthy advices, was still intact at noon. The Germans were bombarding both the city and the fortifications, but seemingly the shells dropping in the city proper were "over-shots." Few of them exploded, but it was plain that the besieging forces could wipe it from the face of the earth whenever they decided to turn their guns on the city.

There was a brief let-up in the firing this morning, while the German authorities demanded the surrender of the city. The demand was refused at once, and without further parley the bombardment broke out with renewed ferocity. The fall of the city is apparently only a matter of a few days.

Towns Burned
Lierre and Contich were practically destroyed yesterday. The shells from the German batteries set fire to the towns and block after block of houses burned.

Fort's Waechelm and Wavre are now nothing but holes in the earth. They have been simply smothered out of existence by the terrific shell fire of the big German guns. Their garrisons perished.

The villages of Hove, Horsel and Vieux-Dieu are deserted and many of their houses have been leveled.

The scenes among the refugees of these villages and towns who flocked into Antwerp are indescribably pathetic. Families have been separated. Some have fled into Holland for safety. Others line the roads leading to the border. Weeping women are frantically seeking their husbands.

FOREIGN LEGIONS FORM IN LONDON

Two Troops of Aliens Being Organized to Help the Allies in War in Europe

LONDON, September 24.—(By Mail to New York)—Two foreign Legions are being formed in London which probably will increase the fighting forces of the Allies by 5,000. One of them, headed by Chevalier Luigi Ricci and numbering among its members many princes it is expected will total 3,000 men. The other which is expected to be 2,000 strong is being organized by Captain Webber, a veteran of many wars.

"We have already enrolled 1250 men," Chevalier Ricci said today, "and in a letter to the King we offered 3,000 men, a number which we shall easily raise by the end of the week.

"Lord Stamfordham has acknowledged the letter, and states that the king has forwarded our offer to the war department. I hope that in a fortnight's time the King's Foreign Legion will be fighting for England and her allies in Belgium.

"At a meeting of the officers of the Legion today the command of the Legion was offered to me, but on account of my age—I was fighting with Garibaldi in 1866—I have refused the offer. I shall remain the honorary colonel, be in command of the home depot and feed the Legion at war with more men.

"We have asked the war office to appoint an English officer in command of the Legion. The Legion is composed of all nationalities except Germans, Austrians and Turks, who under no condition whatever will be allowed to join.

"Several Australian bushmen and Canadian frontiersmen who served in the Boer war have joined our ranks and we have enrolled two aviators, E. Bosizio and Gustave Manin. They both have machines. We also have a large number of motor cars offered us.

"A meeting of the officers of the Legion will be held soon to arrange for a drilling depot."

"Captain Stannard Rogers, who fought in the Boer war has been appointed adjutant of the Legion proper, and the names already enrolled include Prince Alexander Tschagadoff, a Russian officer; Prince L. Ourouff, formerly a captain in the Royal bodyguard of the Czar; Count Anthony de Borch, a Russian officer; Count di Radonice, formerly in the Italian navy; Count di Montanaba, a Portuguese; Captain Granville Baker, who fought in the Boer war; Colonel Vere Wright and Captain Gelsco, Garibaldi veterans; Lieutenant F. Buberli, formerly in the English cavalry; Lieutenant A. T. Barberini, formerly in the Italian navy; Captain Text Voudt, of the Dutch army and Captain Copinger Mahoney late of the Munster Fusiliers.

"Several Australian bushmen and Canadian frontiersmen who served in the Boer war have joined our ranks and we have enrolled two aviators, E. Bosizio and Gustave Manin. They both have machines. We also

JAPS WON'T KEEP MARSHALL ISLANDS

Daddy's Bedtime

A Ghost Story—Story Without The Ghost.

"There had come the most terrific crash over my head."

"DADDY, tell us a ghost story," said Evelyn, creeping up close to daddy, while Jack snuggled down in one corner of the divan.

"I thought you didn't like ghost stories," said daddy teasingly.

"We do your kind, daddy. They begin all creepy, but they end all funny," said Evelyn.

"I'll tell you about a trip I took up in the mountains of Virginia once. It was in a very remote section of the mountains where the people still talk of 'before the war. The house was a quaint weather beaten old structure, which looked as if it might boast of a family ghost."

"However, the evening passed pleasantly enough, with no hint of such creepy things as ghosts and haunted houses. Later I was shown to a great bedroom furnished with a 'four poster' and splendid old colonial furniture. I was obliged to climb up a little pair of steps to reach the 'four poster,' but when I did reach it it was like sinking down into foam.

"I had traveled a long way that day and was very fatigued, and I was hardly conscious of the comfort of my big bed until I became unconscious of everything.

"I slept very soundly for several hours, I should say. Then I started up, quite awake. There had come the most terrific crash over my head.

"I finally decided that the servants must be rolling some furniture about in the room above mine, though why they should take the middle of the night to do that sort of thing I couldn't imagine.

"I said nothing to my hostess the next morning, as I feared she might think me critical, but that night the same thing occurred—the awful thumping followed by rollings and bumpings.

"The next morning at breakfast I asked my hostess if there was any legend about the house being haunted.

"Why, no," she replied, very much surprised, and asked me why I had inquired.

"Then I told her the story and asked her if the servants lodged above me. But my hostess assured me that there was only a garret over the room. After studying the matter over she sent for the colored cook, old Aunt Julia. Aunt Julia came waddling in, her moon face one broad grin for the northern visitor. My hostess questioned her in regard to the attic.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

ON THE ROADSIDE

BY MOLLY McMASTER

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Twilight was drawing to an ominous close amidst threatening rain clouds yet Maria still struggled with the spark plug of her motorcycle. She was far from shelter and the road through the country was long and lonely. Never before, since she had learned to run her cycle, had she found herself in so helpless a plight. She had always considered herself master of her engine, and yet she was stranded on a lone country road for sheer inability to spark that engine.

After an hour's struggle exasperation gave place to tears and Martha crumpled up on the roadside in a paroxysm of weeping. Had Martha been less feminine she would undoubtedly have given her cycle a fling across the street and marched home by the nearest meadows.

In that case, the young man in the great touring car which had arrived around the corner could not have gone to her assistance.

"Anything I can do?" he called out as she slowed down.

Martha raised a face on which tears had made little crooked roads of white, and her glance was hostile. She had been surprised in a weak moment and by a chauffeur. Martha's attitude was decidedly superior when she made answer to the man who had offered her assistance. She realized also that she was looking anything but attractive with her dusty, tear-stained face and angry eyes.

"Oh, ho!" laughed the man not a whit put out by her manner. "I thought you were a man." He glanced down at her masculine cycle costume and tardily removed his cap.

"My clothes are no different from anyone else's," said Martha wrathfully.

"When I am sorry I stopped," said Calvin Sutcliffe with laughing politeness. He turned to start his machine, then as suddenly jumped down and examined Martha's cycle.

"There is no reason why I should permit you to sit here on the roadside all night even if you are foolish enough to want to. It is going to rain shortly." He paid no more attention to Martha than if she had been an obstreperous child. A second later he returned to his car. "It is all right now," he said.

"You are a most detestable person," Martha informed him coolly, "but I thank you for helping me."

"Don't mention it," called Sutcliffe and whirled off down the dusty road.

Martha was far too angry to watch him go. A moment later she too was spinning in the same direction. The cool air revived her spirits and she found time to laugh at the predicament which had made of her a most quarrelsome person. She even regretted her rudeness to the chauffeur notwithstanding his brusque treatment of her. She wondered where he was employed and what he must be thinking of her. Certainly her disposition would not have recommended her to him, and she hoped he would not circulate the story.

Sutcliffe did not circulate the tale. He did, however, go about trying his best to find out who the girl was whom he helped. He had taken the number of her license and it was not difficult after that to find out that her name was Martha Glover, and that she was a resident of Douglas Manor. Sutcliffe spent his summers usually at Port Washington, and it was easy to make guarded inquiry about the name of Glover.

Since he was not a chauffeur, as Martha had supposed, but the owner of two cars and a number of boats, Sutcliffe realized that it was quite an easy matter to make his way into the social circle in which Martha revolved.

It was at the quaint little club house at the manor that a mutual friend presented Sutcliffe to Miss Glover. There was not a glimmer of recognition in the man's eyes as he shook the hand extended to him, nor did he seem in the least overcome by the pleasure afforded him. He was, as a matter of fact, frigidly polite and did not ask for even a fox-trot with her.

Martha had flushed brilliantly when, looking up at the stalwart white flannelled man whom Mrs. Goopie was introducing to her, she met the eyes of the "most detestable person." Instantly in her mind she was flung back to the roadside with a disabled motorcycle and tears and dust mingled freely on her face. She was not surprised that Sutcliffe had not recognized her, yet somehow Martha felt hurt.

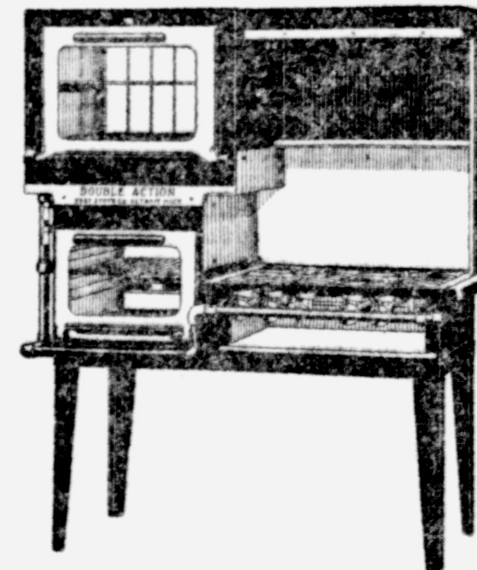

She watched him during the evening dance with every attractive girl in the room and she, in turn, flirted outrageously with each of her partners. If he observed her Martha was not aware of the fact. Sutcliffe to all appearances was oblivious of her presence in the club rooms. Toward the end of the evening he made his way homeward without having said good night to her. The dancing, the men and flirting lost all charm for Martha and she, too, went home.

During the days following Martha rode her motorcycle from morning until twilight. Perhaps she was desirous of fleeing from constant thought of Sutcliffe, or she may have hoped to meet him in his big car.

The most courageous thing Martha ever did in her life was to swerve suddenly across the road precipitating herself and her motorcycle into a ditch. The idea had suggested itself with desperate swiftness the moment she had seen Sutcliffe whirling toward her in his racing car on that

PICKS UP BARGAIN IN FARM PROPERTY

Will Batteen of Eagle Bend Buys 200 Acres Near Lansing for $95 per Acre

LANSING, Ia., Oct. 8.—(Special).—The Frank Thompson farm of 200 acres, four miles west of the city, has become the property of Will Batteen of Eagle Bend, Minn. The price paid was $95 per acre.

Mr. Batteen removed to Minnesota from this section two years ago, and just recently disposed of his farming interests in that state. He had come to Lansing for a visit with relatives, picking up this bargain in farm property by accident.

Mr. Thompson will remove his family to Lansing for the present, where the younger children may have the advantage of city schooling.

Child Has Operation

Attorney Frank May's five year old daughter was stricken with acute appendicitis on Monday and taken at once to the Home hospital where an operation was performed, and the patient bids fair to make a rapid recovery.

Personals

Mrs. Goettle and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin of Blue Earth, Minn., are visiting relatives at Thompson's Corner.

Among interesting exhibits at the recent Festival was a sample of corn raised in Argentine Republic, South same part of the road where the previous encounter had taken place. She had felt perfectly sane and rational until he had appeared in the distance. Then she had taken her courage in both hands fully determined to fling herself across his path.

Sutcliffe jerked his machine to a stop and pumped quickly out and over to the prostrate figure by the roadside. Picking her up and recognizing her his face went white. Martha opened wide her eyes. She was bruised and trembling but did not regret her daring maneuver when she saw the expression in Sutcliffe's eyes.

She smiled, and in the smile Calvin Sutcliffe read the story of her guilt. He wanted to shake her and tell her she was an adorable little goose to risk her precious life, but he refrained in view of the fact that she would undoubtedly think him mad. He contented himself with asking one question.

"Do you still consider me a detestable person?" he said before releasing his hold on her and leading her toward a soft knoll by the roadside.

"No," said Martha frankly. "I was sorry you failed to recognize me when we met at the manor so that I could have told you how deeply I regretted my frightful disposition. I never did know just what was the matter with my cycle."

"Merely a sooted plug," said Sutcliffe. "Too much lubricating oil forms a smoke, and that in turn makes soot. Simplest thing in the world to remedy but I am glad you didn't know it." He gazed happily down at Martha's sparkling eyes.

"As for my not recognizing you—well, that's another story."

"Oh—I seem to understand now," laughed Martha, and looking up into Sutcliffe's eyes she read the old, old story.

America. The corn was sent to Mr. C. J. Wagner by a former resident, Alexander Coard, now of Jacksonville, Florida.

The county population was increased the past week by a son being added to the John Moore family, residing on Ruber Ridge.

Edward Roggensack returned the latter part of the past week from North Dakota, where he was engaged in looking after farming interests. He reports crop returns not up to the average in the Flickertail state.

Postville, Waukon and New Albin are enjoying the luxury of oil streets and it behooves Lansing to be up and doing in that direction. It's not only pleasant to ride over roads of this kind but it's a sanitary precaution that should not be overlooked.

The recent Methodist conference at Cedar Rapids, appointed Reverend H. B. Kofsky to the parish of Oshtian. Lansing, as a people, regrets Mr. Kofsky's departure to other fields and also appreciates the uniting efforts for the upbuilding of the church membership during his residence here. His pulpit will be taken by Reverend Roscoe Stires, who will shortly remove his family here to reside.

John Burton, who is employed at Davenport, was a city arrival Monday afternoon for a short visit with friends.

Miss Ada Rippe of Milwaukee, was among Festival home comers, returning to stenographic duties on Saturday.

NAME DIRECTORS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The federal reserve board today appointed the following class C directors for the Cleveland regional reserve bank:

GIRLS! CLEAN AND BEAUTIFY HAIR NO DANDRUFF-25 CENT DANDERINE

Stop washing hair! Try this! Makes hair glossy, soft and abundant.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

STICK TO THE KNITTING

Personal criticism will not help the cause of commission government. The fault with our present system is not with men, but with a system. As Dr. Anderson once said, the members of the board of public works are earning all they get, and the converse is that usually they get all they can earn. When we fix a $1,000 salary for a job requiring a $3,500 man and add to that the embezzlement of divided authority and conflicting influences controlled by sectional interests, we need not expect a high standard of efficiency.

Let us discuss the merits of the system, not the mere men who are the product rather than the cause of the old arrangement.

LEADER HOLDS PROGRESSIVE FATE

The day before Blaine came out as a non-partisan progressive for governor, the Racine Call said:

Now if the various factions of progressives can get together and select an independent ticket composed of strong men they can go into the campaign with the practical assurance of victory for Wisconsin voters are progressives and the recent reversal was due entirely to the fact that there was so many candidates of that persuasion as to make the selection of any one impossible.

It must be remembered that Mr. Philipp was nominated by a minority vote and that he received the support of many voters who with issues clearly drawn would have been found in the other camp. So we say that if the progressives can get together and agree upon a ticket there is still ample opportunity to save Wisconsin from a reactionary administration.

Perfectly plain, primer language. Twice two is not more simple. "United we stand", and all that sort of thing.

The great big fact is that the ranks of progressives in all three parties are ready to get together. But the leaders will feel the acid test. It is a fact that the deeper a clean man becomes involved in the affairs of a rotten party machine, the more he shrinks any act that would cause the rotters to call him "irregular."

Let us have men in the open. Kneen, Jones, Cochems, respectively democratic, republican and bull moose progressives are out; other leaders of these parties are out. But THE GREAT ARRAY of leaders have not broken cover. Let us have, with the always-in-the-open LaFollette, Aylward and Scott, Davies and Rosa, Wolfe and Martin—and all the others.

Gentlemen of the progressive persuasion, if this independent movement fails it will not fail through fault of the great potential rank and file, IT WILL FAIL BECAUSE OF THE SHIRKING OF THE LEADERS.

THE LAW JUSTIFIES THE INDEPENDENT

Stalwarts who have not voted the republican state ticket in fifteen years are heard to raise the cry of "irregularity" when mention is made of an independent candidate for governor.

Aside from the inconsistency of this howl the incident is interesting. It may be fairly argued that a candidate, having been defeated in a primary can not with grace seek election as an independent. But the assumption that a man who has not been a candidate before the primary, if he cares to do so, may not honorably become an independent candidate, is foolish. Not having entered the primary, he is not bound by it. If he were, of what use would be the law which permits independent candidates to run? Plainly, the statute contemplated such candidacies when it gave them a legal status.

WHY SHOULD THEY FIGHT?

If Portugal to treaty England draws Portuguese soldiery into the European conflict she will derive little profit and may invite disaster. The abused people of Portugal might make fair soldiers if fighting over their own door-mats, but as disinterested citizens of a nation having no interest involved, they are drafted for service in France, they will prove indifferent troops. We advise the Allies not to entrust to them the holding of a vital position.

HOLDING CONFERENCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The National Association of Local Preachers—a Methodist organization—is scheduled to open its fifty-seventh annual conference here tonight. Many preachers arrived yesterday and last night for the sessions and a large attendance is expected at the opening meeting tonight. The sessions all are to be held in the Old John Street church, the first Methodist church in America, founded by Philip Embury in 1776.

Mayor Mitchell expects to welcome the visiting preachers tonight. Other addresses will be made by Frank Moss, Dr. Frank B. Upham and others.

WANT MORE HORSES

During the next decade there will probably be an increased demand for American horses in the countries now engaged in the European war. The demand may even continue much longer, according to investigators of the U. S. department of agriculture, as not only will horses be needed for armies, but when peace is restored, more will be needed for agriculture. Already European agents are said to be endeavoring to purchase horses in this country and Canada, and there is an increased interest in many sections in horse breeding.

But a girl doesn't mind chapped lips—if the right chap is responsible.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

The Women

God of the warring nations,
God of the wars and peace,
Hark to the pleas of the women
And bid the warfare cease!
Hark to the prayers of the children,
Their small hands lifted up,
And from the world forever
Remove this bitter cup!A wife stands for all forsaken
And peers into the storm,
Above the smoke of battle
She marks the vultures swarm,
No loved one hears her pleading
And to her succor flies
Beside where she stands weeping
A baby starves and dies.God, lift the burden from them
Who bear the burden most!
God, touch the hearts of rulers!
God, turn each warring host
From ways that lead to slaughter
Back to the paths of peace!
God, hear the plaints of women
And bid this warring cease.
—Judd Mortimer Lewis, in Houston Post.

Would Evoke Bad Word

At a London dinner recently the conversation turned to the various methods of working employed by literary geniuses. Among the examples cited was that of a well known poet, who, it is said, was wont to arouse his wife about 4 o'clock in the morning and explain, "Maria, get up; I have thought of a good word!" Whereupon the poet's obedient helpmate would crawl out of bed and make a note of the thought of word.

About an hour later, like as not, a new inspiration would seize the bard, whereupon he would again arouse his wife, saying, "Maria, Maria, get up! I've thought of a better word!"

The company in general listened to the story with admiration, but a merry-eyed American girl remarked: "Well, if he'd been my husband I should have replied, 'Alpheus, get up yourself; I've thought of a bad word!'"

The Buttonless Heathen

There had been a missionary sermon and collection at a certain church and a little girl who accompanied her father to the service seemed perplexed and meditative.

When she reached home she asked her mother whether the natives of Africa, of whom they had heard, wore clothes.

"No," replied the mother, "they don't."
"Then," retorted the observant

Wrecking a Novel

In a discussion of the popular literary taste Theodore Dreiser said at the Century club in New York:

"Here is an illuminating episode: A minister was talking to a critic. The minister said:

"I thought you didn't like the work of Potts, the novelist?"

"Neither I do," the critic answered.

"Yet in your review the other day you declared that Potts' last novel was remarkable for its purity, that its high moral tone was a splendid change from the tainted fiction of the day, and that you advised the public to turn to the moral Potts from the debasing fiction so much in vogue. Why, now, my friend, if you dislike Potts, did you talk like that about him?"

"I did it," the critic answered, "to spoil his sale."—Washington Star.

Bearing Up

"The allies have been taking their reverses with pluck and spirit," said Simeon Ford, the New York humorist. "They remind one, in fact, of a chap who was in love."

"This chap proposed to his girl one Sunday evening, but she turned him down. She turned him down cold. She said, wrinkling her nose in a sneer:

"Do you think I could ever marry a man who carries a great big heavy horseshoe in his pocket for luck?"

"At this the spurned suitor took out his horseshoe, patted it, and said to it with a loud laugh:

"Who can doubt your efficiency after this, old boy?"

Round to Come

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the well known suffragist, lamented, at a dinner in Philadelphia, the universal use of cosmetics.

"A few years ago," she said, "the use of cosmetics was considered indecent. Today a woman touches up her face in her motorcar as frankly and unconsciously as she corrects the angle of her hat."

Cosmetics are so openly used now that I shan't be at all surprised to hear the famous beauty doctor Poudre complain some day:

"Belasco's leading lady always announces on the program that her dresses are by Callot, and her hats by Lewis, and her boots by Tree. Why can't she say, too, that her complexion is by Poudre?"

"They don't know there's nobody to object, if we don't," returned Lahoma gaily, as she urged on her steed. "Come along, Wilfred," she taunted, as his horse fell a neck behind hers, "what are you staying back there for? Tired? If we get into the trail before that coach starts, we'll have to put on all speed."

"Doing my best," he called, "but I made a bad bargain when I got this beast. This is the best lick, and it doesn't promise to last long. However, it was the only one left at the barn."

Wilfred did not answer. He was sure the stage would be driven in pursuit at breakneck speed, and from the breathing of his horse he feared it could not long endure the contest. To be sure, Red Kimball and his men had no lawful excuse to offer the stage-driver for an attempt to stop them; but three men who had once been desperate highwaymen might not look for lawful excuses on a dark night in a dreary desert.

Besides, Kimball might with some show of reason, argue that since he was bent on the legitimate object of having a writ served on Brick Willock, he would be justified in preventing Brick from being warned out of the country.

They galloped on in silence, Lahoma slightly holding back. Night rapidly drew on.

CHAPTER XX

Together

Before them the trail, beaten and rutted, stretched interminably, losing itself in the darkness before it slipped over the rounded margin of the world. As the darkness increased, the trail seemed to waver, before their eyes like a gray scarf that the wind stirs on the ground.

On either side of it, the nature of the country varied with strange abruptness, now an unbroken stretch of dead sage-brush showing like isolated tufts in a gigantic clothes-bush—suddenly, a wilderness of white sand shifted as the wind arose—again, broken rocks sown broadcast. Before final darkness came, the trail itself was vari-colored, sometimes white with alkali, sometimes skirting low hills whose sides showed a deep blue, streaked with crimson.

But now all was black, sand, alkali, gypsum-beds, for the night had fallen.

In their wide detour they had endeavored to escape detection from the stage-station, but sheltered by no appreciable inequalities of land, and denied the refuge that even a small grove might have afforded, they had, as it were, been held up to view on the prairie; and though so far away, their horses had been distinctly outlined, as two ants scurrying across a white page.

Wilfred reflected. "If Kimball, when he came out of the restaurant, happened to look in this direction, he must have seen us, and the first inquiry at the barn would inform him who're on the horses." But he said nothing until, from the rear came the sound long-dreaded, telling, though far away, of bounding horses and graining wheels.

"Yes—I hear them!"
"My horse is about used up. We'll have to side-trail, or they'll ride us down."

"I could go on," Lahoma answered, as she drew hard on the bit, "but I wouldn't leave you here by yourself."

"You couldn't travel that distance by yourself. And good as your horse is, it wouldn't last. But thank you for thinking of me," he added, smiling in the darkness, as he dismounted. "Let me lead your horse as well as my own."

"No," said Lahoma, "if leading is to be done, I'll do my part." She leaped lightly to the ground and seized her horse. Side by side they slowly ventured from the trail into the invisible country on the left. They found themselves treading short dead mesquit that did not greatly obstruct their progress.

"Keep going," Wilfred said, when she paused for breath. "It wouldn't do for our horses to whinny, for those fellows would hear them if it was thundering. Give me your hand."

"Here it is," Lahoma felt about in the darkness. "My! But I'm glad I've got you, Wilfred! Oh, how they are dashing along! Listen how the man is lashing his whip over those four horses. Wish we could see 'em—must be grand, tearing along at that rate!"

The stage came rapidly abreast of them, and Wilfred felt her grasp tighten. There was a flash of lights, a glimpse of the driver's face as of creased leather as he raised his whip above his head—then noise and cloud of dust passed on and the lights became trailing sparks that in a minute or two the wind seemed to blow out.

"My poor Brick!" Lahoma wailed. "Do you think he will take good care of himself from what I wrote in my letters? But no, he doesn't think Red Kimball is coming yet, for I didn't know it till I'd written. He's with Bill now, waiting for another letter. Or, for a telegram."

"No, no, Lahoma," Wilfred tried to soothe her. "He's been hiding for days. Why should he come out just at the wrong time? You wrote that you'd not send any more messages. Brick will be on the lookout for Kimball. He is sure to be watching out for him."

"I know Brick," Lahoma protested, seemingly at once overcome by the fatigues of her journey and the hopelessness of the situation. "I was afraid he wouldn't agree to hide at all; and just as soon as you came away, and there wasn't any more prospects of letters, he'd get lonesome, and tire of staying away from home. He's in that cove this minute, and he'll be there when Red Kimball takes the sheriff after him." Her voice quivered with distress.

"Don't be afraid, Lahoma," urged Wilfred, slipping his arm protectively about her. "Don't grieve—I'm sure Brick is in a safe place."

"Well, I'm not in danger," said Lahoma, withdrawing from his involuntary embrace. "Don't take me for Brick! Maybe you're right—but no, I'm sure he wouldn't be willing to stay out in the mountains week after week—and during these cold nights! For it is cold right now. We must hurry on, Wilfred."

(To be Continued.)

There used to be something about perseverance in your third reader, so why in the deuce don't you practice it?

MRS. P. J. LARKIN DIES EARLY TODAY

North Side Woman, Wife of Conductor, Succumbs After Two Years' Illness

Mrs. P. J. Larkin, wife of P. J. Larkin, Milwaukee road conductor, for a number of years a resident of the north side, and well known throughout the city, died at three o'clock this morning at her home, 533 Caledonia street, after a two years' illness with Bright's disease, with which she had been confined to her home for several months.

She is survived by her husband, eight children, Aino, Norine, Leah, Kenneth, Maxine, Orma, Beverly and Sidney, all at home, her mother, Mrs. Mrs. S. A. Mullinder, at home, and one sister, Mrs. C. W. Newberry of Waukesha, Wis.

The funeral services will be at 9 o'clock Saturday morning at St. John's church, Rev. Fr. John Kloeck officiating. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery.

The easiest way not to settle a dispute is to go to law about it.

PASTORS HERE FOR MISSION MEETING

Sessions Open at Bethel Lutheran Church Tonight; to Continue Until Saturday

Several pastors and laymen from Norwegian Lutheran congregations from Southern Minnesota and this section of Wisconsin as well as from the Twin Cities arrived in the city today to attend the mission convention to open this evening at the Bethel Norwegian Lutheran church, George and 8th streets. The session this evening will start at 7:30.

Rev. E. E. Gynild, of Wilmar, Minn., will open the discussion this evening with a general talk on mission work.

Two meetings will be held tomorrow and Saturday and three on Sunday. One of the visiting pastors will preach at the Sunday morning service.

Prof. A. Helland of Augsburg Seminary, Minneapolis, and Rev. Carl Vang also of Minneapolis, will attend the convention and will speak at a number of the meetings. Prof. Helland is well known in Norwegian church circles and is an acknowledged authority on mission problems.

Sore Teeth Foul Breath

Discolored, Sore Teeth, Gum Disease and Foul Breath Yield Quickly to This Home Treatment

You can save the teeth nature gave you, make your mouth healthy and escape the tortures of the dental chair by following this new treatment at home. It is simple, easy and pleasant. Besides it is painless and cannot possibly harm you in any way.

Thousands of mouths like this are seen every day. The trouble is known as Pyorrhea or Riggs Disease. These soft, discolored, bleeding, foul-smelling and receding gums, loosened and sensitive teeth can be made firm, strong and healthy by this simple Home Method.

FREE BOOK TELLS HOW

Stop Despairing! Don't Give Up Hope of Saving Your Teeth

A simple home treatment which we are placing before the public will bring you the relief and comfort you desire. Stop spending money with dentists who do not help you. Don't waste your money on drug remedies that are invariably, as you know, disappointing.

Write to us today and learn more about this painless, speedy, inexpensive remedy that you can use at home, so there will be no further need for you to undergo the long, painful or expensive dental treatment. Bridges, Crowns and False Teeth are unsightly and rarely satisfactory, and through this treatment of the causes of bad and sensitive teeth, gum disease and foul breath they should be unnecessary.

If you are suffering with Pyorrhea or Riggs disease, gingivitis, receding gums, elongated or loose teeth; soft, discolored or spongy gums; if your breath is foul; if your teeth pain while eating; if you are subject to bad tastes—then, for your own sake, send for Dr. Willard's book and learn how easy his method is—how painless and speedy—how this simple remedy quickly and permanently gives sound, healthy teeth.

Just sit down NOW and write us for this free book. A few minutes will convince you that Dr. Willard's common-sense, simple Home Remedy is what you are looking for. Don't wait. There is no pain connected with it. We have received scores of letters from people saying they would have given hundreds of dollars had they known of Dr. Willard's Home Treatment in time. GASOLINE IS BIG FACTOR IN FIGHT

Automobile Has Ended the Weary Marches Which Were Features of Previous Wars

NO MORE BANDS NEEDED BY ARMIES

Music to Lighten Marches Not Necessary for Auto Trucks and Bands Have Disappeared

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

On the Battlefield of Soissons, Sept. 18, By Mail to New York.—Twenty soldiers in red and blue are sitting by the roadside circling a great sheet iron stove. The sides of the stoves are punctured with many holes about the size of a golf ball, and the rays from the red hot coals light up not only the gay colors of the French soldiers, but the meadows behind them and the great elms under which they are sitting. It is almost bedtime.

This is a camp fire scene in France. You think of the old Civil war song "Tenting to night," and then suddenly you notice that these men are not tenting. Drawn up alongside the road is a huge covered auto truck. In this truck the soldiers not only sleep, but "march." On rainy days they eat in it and play cards in it. Their hammocks swing from its roof. They carry their huge stove in it, and when they please they can warm their auto tent.

This was my first view of a battle ground camp. During the next mile I counted forty of these automobile camps. At last the country road began to change itself into a village street. The sentry stopped me, looked at the pass which permitted me to enter the village, and a few more steps brought me into the midst of the biggest automobile show I've ever seen. On both sides of road stood auto busses from Paris, London, and Bordeaux. They were covered with mud, but though the bespattered windows I could see soldiers eating, playing cards or writing. In one or two I saw the glare of stoves, with smoke pouring from tin chimneys.

As I entered the town and came to the square the rays of the lamps of at least fifty automobiles were focussed on the clock tower which stands in the midst of the plaza. The shadows of the soldiers who passed before the lights were thrown giant-size on the lower walls. Every motor was throbbing, for the cars had been prepared to take several hundreds of soldiers to a new position. It sounded like the start of an Indianapolis cup race. The street lamps of the village were not lighted, but the lamps of the scurrying automobiles and motorcycles furnished all the light needed.

I had not been settled five minutes in the apology of a bed which I found in a small private house, before the movement of the main bodies of autos began. The house shook as hundreds of great busses thundered by, carrying more soldiers to the firing line. The smell of gasoline filled the air. The glare of the acetylene lamps seemed to brighten the entire sky. The throb of the engines must have been heard for miles; the noise drowned out now and then even the booming of cannon.

At 4 in the morning I looked out. I saw the auto busses packed full of bread; packed from floor to ceiling, with the loaves resting against the window panes. The autos were carrying food to the soldiers in the trenches. Later the tide of autos turned toward town. The busses bore Red Cross flags and I could see wounded soldiers sitting at the windows or lying on stretchers hung by springs from the ceilings. Then I realized what the automobile has done to change the established customs of warfare. I talked with a French officer about my conclusions during dinner.

"You're right," he said, "soldiers are done with marching. The tramp, tramp, tramp of weary feet that the war poets sing about doesn't exist any more. It's the throb, throb, throb of the tireless engines. We save the strength of the soldiers for fighting. If any march is to be over two miles we carry the men in auto trucks."

I suggested that I hadn't heard a drum or fife. In fact, among all the thousands of Belgians, English, French and African soldiers I have seen I have never discovered a single musical instrument except the bugle. "The auto has done that too," said the officer. "There's no more music in war. Music was intended to help soldiers march, but in these days a soldier can progress very comfortably in an automobile without the encouragement of music. March music is only for the ball room now."

The officers agreed that tents are things of the past. The march, the music, the tent are gone; they belong to the wars of other days, before gasoline was an ally of gun powder.

PHILIPP AT LANCASTER

LANCASTER, Wis., Oct. 8.—Emanuel L. Philipp, republican candidate for governor, will spend today and Friday in making a thorough canvass of Grant county. The indications are that he will have a large audience at the evening speech which he will deliver here tonight.

A motorcycle unexpectedly carried Mr. and Mrs. Willett Seaman, of Minocla, N. Y., on their honeymoon trip. Seaman and Miss Helen Downs rode to the home of Justice of Peace Dodge, where they were married.

BENEZET TRACES CAUSES OF PRESENT STRUGGLE IN EUROPE

Is Outcome of Long Series of Wars Beginning in 17th Century and Attempts to Combine Alien Races

Superintendent L. P. Benezet yesterday in general assembly at the high school completed the lecture on the causes for the present European war which he began last week.

He explained the historical evolution of the different powers and showed how each had grown from a small principality to its present size, by the aid of maps of his own construction. He traced the present struggle as a direct cause of a long series of wars beginning early in the seventeenth century about Turkey and Serbia.

The underlying causes for all these wars, he asserted, is that diplomats and reigning princes have always divided up their kingdoms without any respect to the feelings of the peoples and in this way peoples belonging to different races have been thrown together in attempts to make one nation. The results were always revolutions and war. He traced the development of the different alliances which are now at war by historical events and showed how but a few years since the countries now allied were at war with one another. He assigned as the immediate cause for the present war the assassination of the crown prince of Austria.

SET PLANT VALUATION

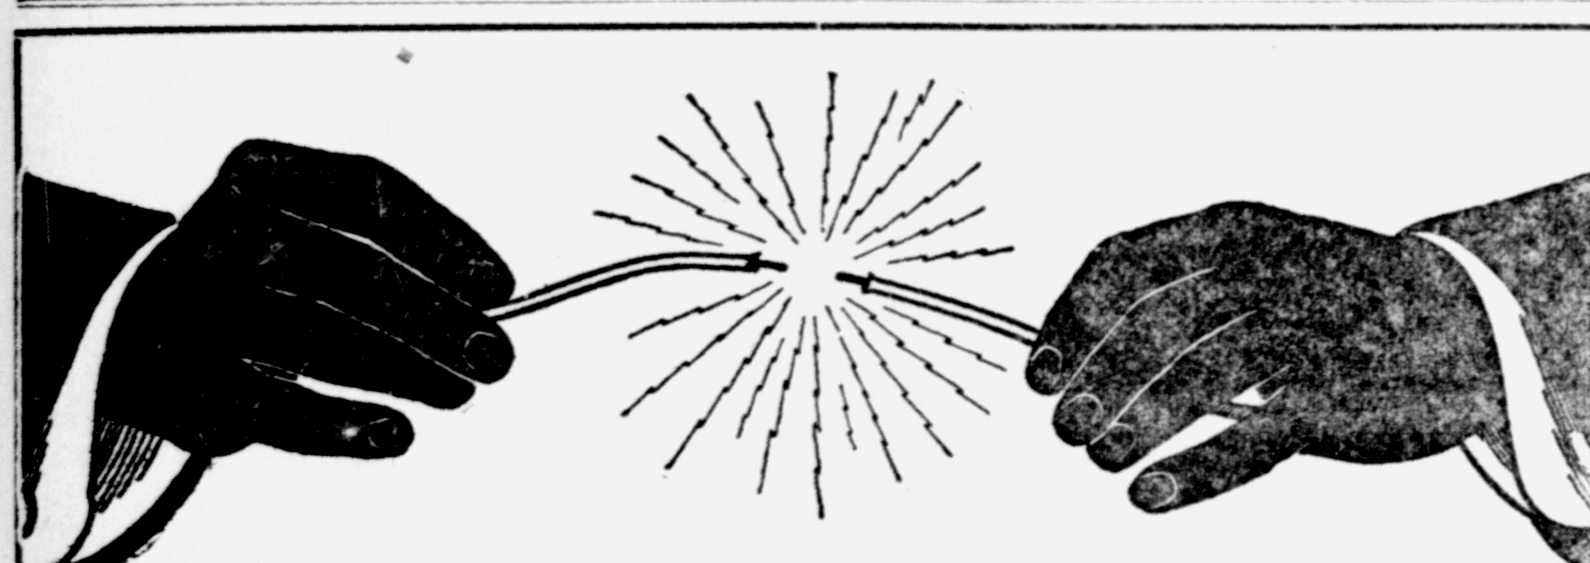

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 8.—The railroad commission today fixed the valuation of the Grand Rapids Light and Power company, to be purchased by the city of Grand Rapids, at $72,000. The question of purchasing the electric plant was voted upon some two years ago by the city, but there have been many delays in making the valuation owing to legal complications.

COSTIVE BOWELS, HEADACHE, COLDS, TAKE CASCARETS

No Headache, Sour Stomach, Bad Cold or Constipation by morning.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Colds, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Thoughts are Sparks

—flashes of the mind that decide for success or failure.

The question is, what kind of sparks does your brain generate?

The brain, like a battery, must be supplied with certain elements to generate thought properly. These brain elements are water, albumen and phosphate of potash. If any of these are lacking in the daily food, brain and body energy are vitally lessened.

Are any lacking? Listen! Water and albumen are plentifully supplied in ordinary food, but phosphate of potash—together with other mineral elements—is almost wholly lacking in white bread and all white flour products.

Grape-Nuts

—containing all the nutriment of wheat and barley, including the precious phosphates so essential to perfect bodies and active brains, provides a food at once delicious, nourishing and economical.

A morning dish with cream furnishes POWER for accomplishment that many a man has come to appreciate.

Common sense goes a long way toward success. To eat right often means to BE right.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY OPENS

OXFORD, Oct. 8.—Oxford opened as usual today, despite a great decrease in attendance due to a big part of the students body having joined England's army. The total enrollment at the school is not expected to exceed 1,000.

The students absent on military service will suffer no loss in their standings as a result, it was announced. The time spent in serving their country will count as time in residence at Oxford if the undergraduates so desire.

American students entering Oxford for the first time are expected to receive a great more attention this year. They are expected to be more of a force in the school. All students will spend each day in drilling for military service.

A GUARANTEED RELIEF FOR ASTHMA

"I want every Asthma sufferer in La Crosse to try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. "Go to Geo. E. Mariner, 425 Main St., and get a 50-cent package of my Asthmador and should it fail to give instant relief, these druggists will cheerfully refund your money without any question whatever." The doctor says further, "No matter how violent the attack, how obstinate the case or what else has failed, my Asthmador or Asthmador Cigarettes will give instant relief, usually in 10 seconds but always within 15 minutes. Hundreds of unsolicited testimonials abundantly prove what my remedy has done, and I know it will do the same for others. I am so positively certain that it will produce instant relief and will be found the best remedy ever used that I have no fears of authorizing these druggists to give this guarantee or of their being called upon for the refunding of money." No risk whatever is run in buying this remedy under this positive guarantee.

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

SKULLS FORM EXHIBIT

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 8.—

One of the educational features of the hygiene display in the social economy exhibit of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition will be the largest collection of skulls and jaws of prehistoric and modern races of men and of skulls and plaster casts of the dental equipment of lower animals ever exhibited. These skulls will demonstrate that the soft feeds of men civilized races and of domestic animals have caused disease from which many barbarous races and all the wild animals are immune.

By means of plaster casts and stereopticon slides the causes of diseases of the teeth will be shown. There will be a large display showing the comparative maxillary anatomy of various animals, including man, and explaining why wild animals and savages seldom have toothache. The display will include a reproduction of the $2,500,000 Forsythe Infirmary for children in Boston, with its modern dental and hygienic equipment, and of a model hygienic dental office. It will occupy 600 square feet of space.

"Y" GYM CLASSES IN FULL SWING

Regular Winter Activities Resumed at Association; Leaders See Successful Year

BUSINESS MEN DIVIDED

Juniors and Seniors to Comprise Elder Division; Boys Are Busy

With the beginning of the fall and winter season in Y. M. C. A. activity, all gymnasium classes at the association are in full swing. Boys' classes on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Saturdays have been organized and have been meeting for a week past. The seniors began their work on Monday and will meet again on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

The Business Men's classes have undergone a change from last year. Health drills, stall bars, pulley, weight and mat exercises, informal games, organized baseball, soccer, basketball and a new gymnasium game will comprise the work this year. Classes will meet on Tuesdays and Fridays at 5 o'clock and 6 o'clock and on Mondays and Fridays at 11 o'clock and 12 o'clock.

A movement is on foot to divide the business men's classes into two classes and to make for a distinctive grade of work in the class to be called the Junior Business Men's class. Only the more active men will be asked to enroll, having as a guide the ages of 25 to 35.

The Senior Business Men's class will meet on the other days of the week, reserving Saturday for first team practice. The class will specialize in volleyball, two of the nights being given over to league tournaments.

Special efforts are being made this year to increase the Emporium Boys' class. The schedule is not yet completed as everything is being done to accommodate the greatest number. Many requests have been received at the association for the scheduling of an advanced swimming and fancy diving class. A class will be organized as soon as ten or more register for regular attendance.

PROHIBITIONISTS OPEN CAMPAIGN

The prohibitionists, with their headquarters at Madison are making a vigorous campaign in behalf of their candidate and principles. Campaign arrangements have been made for Charles L. CHICAGO SHOOTING STIRS UP MYSTERY

Detectives in Chicago Work to Solve Details of Quarrel Which Caused the Wounding of Bertsche

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Four squads of detectives, working independently of each other, were today trying to solve the mystery behind the revolver battle in Randolph street yesterday that led to the fatal wounding of Barney Bertsche, ex-convict and former political power, and Nathan Spira, convicted firebug, and sent Detective Sergeants William Egan and James Monaghan and two innocent bystanders to the hospital with gun wounds.

Bertsche was under summons to appear today before the city council crime commission which is probing sensational charges of police connection with an organization or several hundred pickpockets and other crooks.

The two detective sergeants were also slated to appear for questioning before the commission today and the state's attorney office is of the opinion that the gun battle in the theatrical district was by no means accidental.

Bertsche bore a grudge against Egan, who was active in Bertsche's conviction recently of operating a confidence game, a conviction that stamped Bertsche as the head of a "clairvoyants' trust." It was intimated today that Bertsche planned to tell the council some interesting things about the connection between the police department and the organization of crooks. Spira, who was convicted in the recent "Arson trust" investigation, insisted today that he only happened to be on Randolph street when the battle opened but other persons declare that he was a participant.

LURED TO BEATING

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Franklin Mayo, president of the Mayo Manufacturing company today reported to the police that he was attacked by a man whose face he did not see, and badly beaten in a room at the Palmer house yesterday. Mayo went to the room in response to a telephone call from an "E. B. Mason of Cleveland," who said he wanted to see him on important business. When he entered the door he was knocked down with a club.

"Whys" of European War Moves Explained By Military Expert

(BY J. W. T. MASON)

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—11 A. M.—The removal of the Belgian government archives to Ostend demonstrates that the Germans have not succeeded in completely investing Antwerp and suggests that a way is clear to the west for the escape of the Belgian army if Antwerp eventually capitulates.

The Belgians apparently are adopting the same tactics at Antwerp that they used so successfully at Liege. The field force is being held together as a distinct unit apart from the strategic demands centering about the permanent fortifications of Antwerp. The artilleryists in the forts are in reality isolated as far as the employment of the field army is concerned. The principal purposes of the field army is at Antwerp, as it was at Liege, to guard itself from capture and not to defend the city within city walls, where escape is impossible. It is now certain that a retreat westward is open for the Belgians and if this line can be kept clear, Antwerp's fall will be of no military consequence to the Germans. The Belgian army which the German general staff desires so ardently to trap, will have got away and Antwerp's surrender will be as useless to Germany as was the capture of Brussels.

The disposition of the Belgian army suggests that the Germans will have to make use of a far larger number of troops than are now being employed, if the Belgians are to be prevented from slipping through. Most of the German force undoubtedly is concentrated to the southeast of Antwerp to prevent the Belgians moving in that direction toward the main German line of communications. This absolutely necessary disposition of the investing force will be of much value to the Belgians by assisting them to make good their escape to the west.

Whether or not the Belgians can succeed in this maneuver, developments during the next few days will tell. If the Belgian general staff follows the admirable precedent established at Liege, it will not be guided in field strategy by the condition of the Antwerp defenses. Instead, it will remain in front of Antwerp only as long as its lines of westward retreat continues open and will move the moment they are threatened. The culmination of this strategy will be the eventual union of the Belgian army with the Anglo-French forces along the Belgian border. Thus, a prime consequence of the German attack on Antwerp may be the strengthening of the assault the allies are planning against Von Boehm's northwest corner of the German battle square.

War Bulletins

LONDON, Oct. 8.—The admiralty last night issued an official announcement that the British submarine E-9 has successfully returned to her base after sinking a German destroyer off the mouth of the Ems river.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—It is announced that the Canadian military contingent has arrived in England. These troops will be sent to a camp previously selected to complete their training.

PARIS, Oct. 8.—A German aviator in a taube aeroplane, dropped two bombs near Paris today. The first fell on the Plain of St. Denis, on the outskirts of Paris, and did no particular damage. The second fell at Aubervilliers and wounded three persons. The aviator escaped.

MISS ANNA SPETTEL IS MARRIED TODAY

Miss Anna Spettel and Ludwig Moe were united in marriage this morning at the cathedral parsonage by Rev. G. Snyter. They were attended by Miss Virginia Spettel and Edwin Spettel. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to friends and relatives at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Spettel, 688 North Third street. The newly-weds left this noon for a trip to the Twin Cities, and upon their return they will be at home at 416 North Tenth street.

COTTON GROWN SUCCESS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 8.—Putting the theory of "war cotton" into practice, Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner, society woman, and wife of a member of Gov. Major's personal staff, interested guests at the ball of the Veiled Prophets, the foremost annual society event of St. Louis, by appearing in a gown made entirely of cotton. Women who saw the gown proclaimed cotton a success as material for gowns to be worn at society functions. Mrs. Gardner scorned European products entirely in her costume, even to the slippers.

THROWS PURSE AWAY BABE STRANDS SIX

Oswald Tweed, wife and four small children were stranded in La Crosse yesterday, the result of the smallest child playfully hurling his mother's purse containing $21 through a train window while enroute from the Twin Cities.

They were without funds and food here. Police Chief John B. Webber provided them with money for food and later secured, through Tweed's brother in Milwaukee, tickets to Milwaukee, where Tweed expects to secure work as a cook.

LOCAL P. O. CLERK IS FINED TODAY

Andrew J. Sauer Pleads
Guilty in Federal Court
Today; Must Pay
$250

The story of a young man's endeavor to provide for his family on a salary of $65 a month, and his failure to resist temptation when the happiness of his family was at stake was told in United States district court this morning.

Andrew J. Sauer was an employee of the postoffice here. He had been married a year when a child was born. He needed a small amount of money. His position as clerk in the postoffice placed him in a position to handle large sums of money.

Sauer pleaded guilty this morning to taking a sum of money under twenty dollars.

Judge A. L. Sanborn fined him $250. W. F. Wolfe pleaded the case before federal court.

Fine Brush Cutter

Harold Haroldson, brush cutter, residing above La Crosse on the Mississippi, this morning changed his plea of not guilty of selling liquor to Indians. He was charged with the offense in United States district court. Haroldson arranged to pay a $50 fine and was allowed to go.

REFUSE DEMAND TO GIVE UP AND RESIST FIERCELY

missing children. Babies of tender years are toddling along the streets and the country roads weeping hysterically. Families are utterly without information of the whereabouts of fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters. Thousands are hungry. There has been no attempt as yet to systematize the exodus of the noncombatants. Many are stolidly remaining in their homes hopeless, despairing, prepared to accept death as inevitable.

Dutch Overtaxed

The Dutch people along the border are systematic. But already their resources have been taxed to the utmost. They are doing their utmost to relieve distress and to feed the hungry. They have established a number of concentration camps where these latest refugees will be housed for the present. But outside aid must come quickly unless thousands are to starve.

Refuse to Surrender

THE HAGUE, Oct. 8.—Communication with Antwerp is interrupted. The city is known to be under a terrific bombardment from all sides. Following refusal to acquiesce in the demand for the surrender of the city by the military authorities, the Germans, who previously had confined their fire to the encircling chain of forts, turned their guns on the city itself. They had given two hours' notice to the inhabitants to leave and thousands fled out in utter panic.

Flee in Terror

The roads to the Dutch frontier are littered with household goods, clothing and personal belongings of every character abandoned by the terrified Belgians in their mad rush to safety. The procession started orderly enough, but with the booming of the big guns panic spread to the crowd.

Reports from the city itself say that great shells are dropping everywhere and that many houses have been destroyed already. The Germans claim that they have beaten the Belgians from both the outer and inner lines of fortifications. They claim that they have taken four heavy batteries, field guns and many machine guns after crossing the Nethe river. Fort Broecking, the Germans claim, was taken by direct assault after having been bombarded for two days.

The Germans burned Lierre before they crossed the Nethe. It is stated that King Albert still remains in the city and is directing the defense although all of the archives of the government have been transferred to Ostend.

It is generally accepted here that the Belgians can hardly hold out more than a couple of days at the most. They had considered their Nethe river positions absolutely impregnable, but they were utterly wrecked by the pounding of the heavy German shells.

The crossing of the Nethe by the Germans was one of the most spectacular episodes of the present war. The Germans first tried to build pontoon bridges under the protection of their heavy artillery. The Belgians frustrated six separate attempts. Finally, the Germans clustered their heavy field artillery at one point and simply built a wall of steel projectiles around their engineers. The latter hurriedly threw four sets of pontoons into place and then two German divisions were rushed across and carried the Belgian positions at the point of the bayonet.

Accept Fact Antwerp Must Fall

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Belgium today was the center of action in the European war. With the Germans methodically reducing Antwerp, it was accepted as a fact that the fortress must surrender, and news via Calais and Dunkirk indicated that the so-called battle of the Aisne, now characterized officially as "the great battle," has extended into southern Belgium. The Germans are declared to be moving strong forces of infantry behind their cavalry screen and are plainly continuing their attempt to cut the British lines of communication by way of the channel. In this connection it is stated that a strong squadron of British dreadnoughts is now massed at Ostend, and also along the coast watching the French harbor cities. This fleet will be used to prevent the Germans taking the sea coast cities and thus establishing a base for a possible Zeppelin attack on England. The Germans are said to have

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

BELGIUM.—The Germans have broken through the outer ring of the Antwerp forts, crossed the Nethe river in force, and are now bombarding the inner circle of forts which are being defended vigorously under the direction of King Albert. Germans are also reported strongly entrenched on the Scheldt river, and to be fighting near Ypres.

FRANCE.—The general fighting continues unchecked along a line 100 miles long running north and south from Compeigne into Belgium. The war office reports that heavy cavalry forces are engaged and that the French are regaining ground heretofore ceded in the face of superior numbers.

ENGLAND.—The Canadian contingent has landed in England, and will complete its training at a camp there. British warships are reported at Ostend and other coast cities, prepared to aid the allies in keeping the Germans from securing sea coast bases.

RUSSIA.—The war office explains that the Russian eastward movement in Galicia was for the purpose of enticing the Austrians and Germans from their strongly entrenched positions along the Dnepr river and was not a retreat, as the Austrians claim.

GERMANY.—The official war office statement says that material progress is being made against Antwerp and that the fall of the city is considered certain. The general situation in France continues unchanged with the Germans making steady gains on the right wing.

JAPAN.—The war office reports the German fire from the Kiao Shau forts slackening, and it is believed that they cannot hold out much longer. Two German military aeroplanes have been shot down.

strongly entrenched the line of the Scheldt river while their outposts were expected today to be west of Ypres, sixteen miles north of, and slightly west of Lillie. It is reported that there has been heavy fighting in the neighborhood of Lille and south of that city with no decisive result as yet.

Still Belgium Pays

There is much sympathy here for the Belgians, who are again bearing the brunt of the war. Their entire country has been devastated, and the able bodied male population terribly reduced, and still there is no apparent sign of a let up. Belgium is paying a bitter price for her opposition to the German military plans, and even though the allies may win, she will never be able to recover from the ravages of the war.

It is feared here that Antwerp may be destroyed. While up to the present there are no indications that the Germans are deliberately shelling the city itself, the great range of their guns makes it certain that shells must do great damage inside of the city.

Energetic measures are to be taken by the government to aid the Belgian refugees. As quickly as possible those who have fled to Holland will be brought here and distributed throughout the empire, to be cared for until the war shall end.

GERMAN FIRE AT KIAO CHAU LESS

Forts in Chinese Possession
Said by Japanese to Be Near Surrender

TOKIO, Oct. 8.—The war office declares that the general situation at Kiao Chau, where the combined British-Japanese expedition is operating against the Germans, shows material improvement. The German artillery fire has appreciably lessened, indicating that ammunition is getting short. The Germans have also lost two of their aeroplanes, which have been shot down by the Japanese while reconnoitering over the land forces. In addition the captive balloon from which the Germans directed their fire was put out of business when a shell cut its rope.

It is not believed here that the Germans can hope to hold out more than another week or ten days. They are reported short of supplies of all sorts and their losses in killed and wounded is said to be very large. Because of this belief the Japanese and British commanders in chief have refused to attempt and frontal operations, although it is believed it would not be a difficult task to take the forts by storm. But the Japanese general staff is desirous of capturing the concession with the least possible loss, and so is continuing siege operations.

Have Outer Chain?

PEKIN, Oct. 8.—The Japanese continue their bombardment of the Kiao Chau fortifications, and are reported here to be in possession of the outer chain of the Tsing Tao fortifications. The fleet continues to cooperate with the land forces and according to a statement by the Japanese legation, three of the harbor forts have been demolished.

It is expected that another formal demand for the surrender of the concession will be made by the end of this week. It is believed that the garrison must be running short of both food and ammunition, but up to the present time all suggestions of surrender have been sternly rejected by the commandant, who insists that he and his men will perish at their posts.

VIROQUA GETS REBEKKA MEET

Viroqua was chosen for the next district convention of the Rebekkas held yesterday afternoon in Odd Fellows' hall. The convention will be held in May.

Mrs. Anna Phinney of La Crosse received the first degree at the session last night, the La Crosse Rebekkas carrying out the floor work. Mrs. Ollie Schroeder of Marshfield, vice president of the state Rebekka assembly, was present at both the afternoon and the evening sessions. A six o'clock dinner was served in the Odd Fellows' banquet hall, followed by a social program. More than two score attended from Tomah, Sparta, Brownsville, Viroqua and Hokah.

No musical act of half the novelty or the stupendy of Willard's "Temple of Music" now at the Majestic, has ever been seen in La Crosse. The act is considered one of the greatest in the circuit. It has played for weeks at the White City in Chicago. Richardson's Canine Dream, a beautiful act, is also being shown for the last half of the week.

Three more good acts, Heelow and Rollord, Lee Tung Foo and Judson Cole are offered in rounding out the exceptionally good bill. Foo is called the Chinese Harry Lauder.

WILSON DOUBTFUL OF COTTON PLANS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Removal of the ten per cent tax on state banks as one means of relieving the south's financial distress was sought of President Wilson today by the Georgia Congressional delegation. The president declared himself sympathetic with the situation, but doubtful of all plans for relief except the Lever warehouse bill. He held that other schemes may upset the federal reserve board machinery. President Wilson also pointed out to the delegation the havoc worked after the civil war by the reduction of acreage of cotton, and likened such measures to the burning of the Kentucky tobacco crop.

EXPECT PLEA FROM L. B. GOVE TODAY

L. B. Gove, former assistant postmaster at the Tomah postoffice, charged with embezzlement of a large sum of government money, is expected to enter a plea before Judge A. L. Sanborn in United States district court either this afternoon or tomorrow.

The petit jury has been excused from duty for the present term of court. They are subject to a call back to duty in case they are needed.

MACKIAN LEADER PUTS ONE OVER

Keeps Injured McInnis from Game with Explanation He Is Giving the Man Rest

FIRST SACKER MAY NOT PLAY

Right Hand, Hurt by Pitched Ball, Makes Throwing and Batting Difficult; May Play Walsh

SCRAMBLE FOR TICKETS ON

Fans Wait for Hours to Get Pasteboards; Speculators Busy in the Hotel Lobbies

BY HAL SHERIDAN
(Written for the United Press.)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—In the midst of scrambles for tickets and threats of the weather man, Philadelphia came up with a jerk today to the realization that Connie Mack had put something over.

"Stuffy" McInnis, star first baseman of the Athletics, is injured. He has not played a game since September 27 and is nursing a bruised right hand, which was hit by a pitched ball. When Old Fox Mack chose to let it leak out that Stuffy's absence from recent games was due to something more than a mere desire to give a rest, he immediately declared his first sacker would start in the first game of the big tussle with the Braves tomorrow. Just the same, frantic efforts are being made to groom Jimmy Walsh into form as a substitute for McInnis.

It was in 1911 that Davis played a similar role. He had given way to the youthful McInnis at first. Then Stuffy was injured and the veteran stepped back into his old place and helped the Athletics to victory. Should Davis be called upon to play against the Braves, he will carry more years on his shoulders than any man who ever participated in a world's series. Davis is forty-three, but his batting eye is still keen, and he is one of the chief strategists of the Mackian hosts.

McInnis had his hand bandaged yesterday, but after five o'clock when the shadows were beginning to fall over Shibe park, he was out on the field with a boy to pitch to him and was trimming up his batting lamps. McInnis is to practice with the Athletics today and though his team-mates declare Stuffy will be as sound as a dollar for the opening game tomorrow, there is some anxiety over how that hand acts under pressure.

Stallings may put his men through a short workout on the field at Shibe park today and again he may not. George is nervous because he cannot get the field at two o'clock, the time he requested it. Mack told the Brave leader he had arranged for his own team to practice at that hour, and offered him the park for a morning workout. Stallings wanted his men to have a glimpse of the lights and shadows of the field at the hour on which the series games will be played and Mack's offer is not the Georgian's idea of southern hospitality.

While all this is going on, the boys that make the noise and dish up the cash for the series are mobilizing. Skirmishers are already on the scene, and the investment of Shibe park will be complete by noon today.

Edward Lynch, 19, appeared at the bleacher gate at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Edward brought a soap box and a smile with him and will be there when the gates open at noon Friday. Soon after Edward established himself a second young man arrived, and by midnight there were fifty men and boys on guard. The line was constantly growing today.

There was an overwhelming demand for reserved seats today, despite the fact that the sale closed yesterday, while nearly 10,000 rabid fans were still standing in line. The only way late comers could get a ticket was to hand over $25 or so to some quiet spoken gent in a hotel lobby. Such gents are called speculators, and they appear to be well supplied with what they want to sell and the fans want to buy.

CUBS TRIM SOX IN CITY SERIES

Nationals Hammer Wolf-gang While Americans Are Unable to Run Bases

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The Chicago Nationals drew first blood in the series to decide the championship of Chicago on Wednesday, when they defeated the local Americans, 4 to 2.

The older league representatives bunched their hits off Wolfgang and won easily. Good's double and Salier's single gave them the first run, while singles by Bresnahan and Good, a fielder's choice and Leach's double netted two more in the fifth inning, which were enough to win the game.

Inability to run the bases cost the American leaguers several runs and probably the game. They had men on the bases every inning but one and almost in every instance a runner was run down on the paths. They saved themselves from a shutout when Schalk's double, Breton's sacrifice, Bodie's single and errors by Good and Derrick on Weaver's grounder and infield out scored two runs in the seventh.

The total paid attendance as announced by the national commission was 21,744. Total receipts, $14,172.50. Of this amount the national commission receives $1,417.25; the players' share, $7,653.15; each club's share, $3,551.05.

BADGERS WORK IN DOWNPOUR
Juncos Sends Varsity and Freshmen Through Hard Scrimmage and Signal Drill
MADISON, Wis., Oct. 8.—A heavy downpour of rain Wednesday afternoon did not prevent a few faithful rooters from availing themselves of the last chance to see the 1914 Wisconsin team in scrimmage at Camp Randall before Saturday's game with Marquette.

Coch Juncos' eleven lined up against the 1913 team in a scrimmage that left the men tired out and ready for the showers at supper time. The ground was wet and prevented any really fast work on the part of the varsity or yearlings.

The big problem ahead of the Badger coach is still the development of an efficient backfield. The new line has lots of strength and showed up to advantage in the Lawrence game Saturday, but the work of the men behind the line is in need of a good deal of polishing before the big games. Kreuz, at full, has been following up his good work in the Lawrence game by consistent playing in scrimmage at the camp, and it looks as though at least one place in the backfield is satisfactorily settled. The main criticism of the backfield so far has been that the men are slow in getting started in some cases, and have little interference to rely upon. Tackling also needs attention.

Hoy Clayton, who was injured in the first play he mixed in on in the Lawrence game, is out of the game indefinitely. All the other men are in good shape.

If your heart prompts you to do a good deed, do it immediately before you have had heart failure.

DIRECTUM I WINS PACING GLASSIC

Champion Takes Tennessee Event in Straight Heats; May Race William Again

LEXINGTON, Oct. 8.—The classic Tennessee stake, a $3,000 event for free-for-all pacers which was the feature of the races yesterday, was won by Directum I, who won in straight heats.

It was announced that Directum I and William have been again matched to race at Grand Rapids on Oct. 21 for a purse of $5,000.

HIGHS EXPECTED TO TRIM TOMAH

Regardless of the rainy weather, the La Crosse high school football team had their regular practice last night as usual. The team is showing improvements in every line and it is expected they will defeat Tomah high next Saturday by a decisive score. The game will be played at Tomah.

There is nothing a married woman enjoys more than helping a spinster get into the same kind of trouble.

his communique as to the operations in the clouds. It turned warmer and there was a slight leakage from the skies early today, but the forecaster was not prepared to say whether this leak would be plugged or would grow larger by tomorrow. The weatherman is making decidedly threatening gestures, however, and there is every chance of a mousing up of the program.

Smoke tobacco, not tabasco!

You listen to this:

There isn't anything the matter with your smokappetite. You try Prince Albert in a jimmy pipe or rolling a few makin's cigarettes before you do the next thing. And you'll wise up to what the doctor ordered! For P. A. in a cigarette or a pipe is a wonder—so bully in flavor and fragrance. And it's easy to roll, because it "stays put."

Unlike any other tobacco, Prince Albert can't bite your tongue and can't parch your throat. That's cut out by a patented process. No other tobacco can be made like the national joy smoke

Everywhere you travel throughout the nation you'll find more men smoking pipes than ever before. Since P. A. hit the turf, less than five years ago, three men now smoke a pipe where one smoked before. What's the answer? Just you get your tidy red tin, fire up a few loads of "the national joy smoke," and you'll wise up so quickly you'll think you've been napping for the last few years. And that's no idle dream!

Now do that little thing and get going in the right direction!

Just buy P. A. like you never had smoked any other brand. The dealer's wise. Say "P. A. for mine." In the tappy red bags 5c; tidy red tins 10c; also in handsome smoked and half-pound humidor. You'll get acquainted right well on the second fire-up. On?

MADISON MEDICS ARRANGE TO FLY

Seniors at University Contribute Twenty-five Cents Each to Fund to Buy Hydroplane Ride

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 8.—Forty senior medics formed a pool of ten dollars yesterday each donating "two bits." Hugh Northrop with his hydro-aeroplane gives daily flights on Lake Mendota and takes a passenger for fare of ten dollars. Lots were to be drawn yesterday outside of the Physiology building to see who was to be the air passenger. "Cold feet" were tabooed, neither could the winner pocket the money.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Chas. A. Benschlag, druggist, 503 Main St.

MT. UNION SCORES OFF WOLVERINES

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 8.—Michigan was scored on for the first time this season Wednesday when it defeated the light but aggressive football eleven from Mount Union college of Alliance, Ohio, 27 to 7.

Mount Union, unable to gain in the first three periods, obtained the ball in the last quarter in Michigan territory, brought it to the one yard line by three forward passes and then scored through center.

Michigan scored only seven points in the last half. In the first period, and again in the second, Splawn, the spectacular drop kicker of the Wolverines, booted goals from the field.

KUEHN NORMAL CHEER LEADER
Edwin Kuehn of Viroqua, was elected cheer leader of the Normal school at a student meeting yesterday afternoon. Kuehn will probably hold the office for a year, although the election was only temporary. Kuehn responded to the favor with a short speech.

BUSKIN CLUB TO START ITS SEASON
The normal school's dramatic society, "The Buskin club," will meet Monday evening at 7:45 to admit new members.

The society will give several plays during the year. In previous years the club has given several excellent productions, well attended by both students and citizens. The society is planning some excellent work this year under the direction of D. O. Coate, instructor in English. The members will be thirty in number and are admitted by a tryout.

CONVENTION OPENS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 8.—The democratic state convention of Rhode Island opened here today. A full attendance of delegates was certain before the sessions opened.

One of the most important features before the convention was the suffragist question. Prominent Rhode Island suffragists had made an appeal to members of the state central committee, getting their promise to put the question of endorsing women suffrage up to the state convention.

BULKLEY HAS BIRTHDAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Rep. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland, Ohio, today received congratulations upon his 34th birthday anniversary.

PARK COMMISSION TO ASK INCREASE

Ten Thousand Provided in Budget Will Be Inadequate; at Work on Figures Today

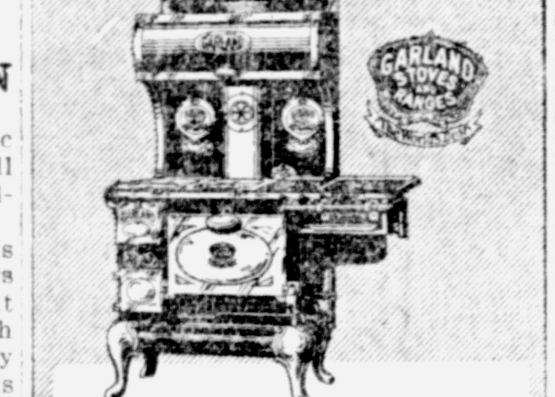

Members of the park commission, with Superintendent John L. Forrer, are estimating the necessary expense of park maintenance next year. When the figures are completed they will be presented to the common council in the hope of getting that body to grant an increase over the $10,000 provided in the budget for parks.

"We haven't completed our figures," said Commissioner Joseph M. Hixon this morning. "We will need more money than the estimate of the city comptroller provides."

Mr. Hixon said the increase would not be unduly large and the total would undoubtedly be under $15,000.

GINGER CHARLIE BEATS CHIFEDS OUT OF PENNANT

Our own Ginger Charlie Watson, who used to be the whole Outcast team before organized ball passed away in La Crosse, is an athlete at Fed fans in Chicago, who are blaming the "Doc" for having had considerable to do with the Chifed loss of the flag in the outlaw league. The Tinx lost out by a nose in the final stretch, and a certain game last Thursday played a large part in the outcome. Watson hurled a three hit game, and won it, 2 to 1, thereby kicking the Chifeds one notch behind in their race with Indianapolis for the well known rag. Chicago fans think it wasn't clubby of Charlie to do this to his former team mates. Doc seemed to have given the Shoufeds some dope which gave them the edge on the Chicago outfit, too, for Sunday the St. Louis aggregation, just to clinch it for the Hoofeds, leaped upon the struggling Chicagoans and lammed two victories out of their hides. Whereat, pennant hopes in Chicago expired with a loud gasp.

This Stove Does the Work of Two

Burns either gas or coal, or both at the same time if you wish. Four top cooking holes for coal; four regular burners for gas. Same oven heated by either fuel.

No interchange of numerous parts. No fussing with dirty grates or burners. The use of one fuel does not interfere with the other. A cool kitchen in summer; a warm kitchen in winter.

Come in and let us show you all the features of this amazing new "Garland" Combination Range.
